DEATH RATE SHOWS ARIZONA GOOD FOR HEALTH

Birth Rate Slightly Off, But Some New Comers Probably Overlooked.

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 26.—Arizona's death rate is 14.9 per 1000 of population, according to figures submitted by Dr. E. S. Godfrey, territorial health officer, whose figures cover the year ending June 30, 1910.

This is lower than nearly all states of the country, and shows a remarkable condition considering the fact that so many tubercular patients die here each year. Dr. Godfrey is preparing a separate report to show the number who die from this disease.

Some Births Overlooked.

Roosevelt is coming soon and he may frown instead of smile when he learns that the birth rate for the territory is only 15.5 percent, but this is due to a certain extent to the failure of attending physicians to report all births.

Death Rate by Counties.

Pima county leads in the death rate with a total of 23.1 percent, while Apache is the lowest with 5.4 percent. The rates for the various counties are:

County	Per 1000 population
Apache	5.4
Cochise	14.9
Cocconino	6.9
Gila	14.0
Graham	9.5
Maricopa	22.1
Mohave	6.1
Navajo	15.5
Pima	23.1
Pinal	16.2
Santa Cruz	10.8
Yavapai	12.3
Yuma	14.2

STREET RAILWAY CO. TO HANDLE CROWDS

G. H. Road Decides Not to Put on Special Fair Train.

The G. H. will not put on a train service between the city and the fair grounds during the fair. The matter was taken up by the fair association with the officials of the company but it was advised Wednesday that the plan was impractical.

The law will not permit a railroad to accept a fare of less than 10 cents for transportation and at a 20-cent round trip rate the officials of the road say it would be a losing venture.

Street Railway Will Cover Them.

Manager H. S. Potter, of the street railway company, says that his company will be able to take care of the fair crowds. "The cars may be a little crowded on the night of the Buffalo Bill show, but we will be able to handle the normal crowds without trouble," he said.

SUIT FOLLOWS BRIDGE ACCIDENT

Suit asking judgment for $40,000 has been filed in the 41st district court by Charles White against the El Paso Electric Railway company. The action results from the accident on July 29 last, when a Mexico car fell into the river bed through the Santa Fe street bridge. White, who is a carpenter, was a passenger and alleges that he sustained serious internal injuries.

The street car company will allege that the action cannot be sustained in the United States, owing to the fact that the accident occurred on the Mexican side.

HEARING OF LEECH MOTION IS NOT SET

The date of the hearing of the motions asking arrest of judgment and a new trial in the case of John Leech, found guilty of the murder of E. Kohlberg, is still indefinite, according to the statement Wednesday morning of Judge Clarke. The state is not ready to take up the case at present, owing to the rush of other work. Judge Wharton also wants to review the testimony in the case before filing the amended motions.

TESTIMONY ENDS IN CANDENA SUIT

Case Probably Will Go to the Jury on Thursday Morning.

The introduction of testimony in the case of C. Cadena against the estate of Juan Armendariz, deceased, was concluded by both the plaintiff and defendant Wednesday morning before Judge A. M. Walthall in the 41st district court.

The jury probably will begin deliberations Thursday morning.

Cadena, a nephew of Juan Armendariz, asks for one-third of the estate, the whole of which is valued at about $50,000, on the basis of an agreement with Armendariz before his death.

Another plea is for one-third of the estate on the score of an agreement with Mrs. Armendariz. Mrs. Armendariz pleads limitations on both scores, also that Cadena broke a contract with her.

The Armendariz estate includes a number of farms and a store at Socorro.

Owing to the involved accounts, R. C. Walshe was appointed auditor. His report recites that Cadena is indebted to the estate almost $500.

a libel action. Well, let's go and break it to old Curtis."

When Curtis was roused from an impressionistic study, he was painting of a taxicab and made to read the paragraphs, he was hopeless with laughter for some moments.

"I don't know whose idea I like best," he gasped, "the loveless New Zealand or the libeled widow. I shall have to be very cautious in dealing with visitors. Shall I stick up a notice—New Zealand inquiries from all two; widow inquiries from two to six?"

"I hope it won't do you any harm," said Brook anxiously.

"Bless you, no. Picture dealers are horribly ignorant. It's as much as they can do to spot out one newspaper. They'll never read two."

Just then a tall, gaunt gentleman entered the room, dashed forward, and gripped Oswald by the hand.

LANIER of the CAVALRY

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes in Ambush," Etc. Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company.

"Good God!" said Stannard. "Come in." And he led forthwith his aged and trembling comrade within doors, seated him by the still glowing stove in the front room and struck a light. In less than a minute Mrs. Stannard, too, had joined them, her kind blue eyes filled with tender pity and sorrow. Poor motherless Dora had no lack of friendly counsel and fond, womanly sympathy when once she could be brought to lay her burden there. And now, with his gray hairs bowed in sorrow to the dust, poor Mayhew had come to tell his piteous tale. Ever since young Rawdon had gone with the paymaster she had been fitful and nervous. Ever since their coming to Cushing four weeks ago she had been watching, waiting, listening, often weeping, and when letters came for her with the postmark of Fetterman or Laramie, Red Cloud or the cantonment in the hills he could not but note her feverish eagerness and her instant escape to her own room to read her treasure alone. Oh, yes; he knew they must be from Rawdon. He had liked the lad, knew there was good stuff in him, and he could not bear that fellow Fitzroy, who was a military loan shark, a man who fattened on the needs or weaknesses of his comrades.

But—God! He had never looked for this. Oh, where had she gone? And why? He had found her at home and in tears after the fire. Then that afternoon, some time, somehow, she got a message or a letter and then kissed him and said she would be better if he did. At 11 o'clock old Chlo's sobbing aroused him. Dora had disappeared.

They lost no time, those men of the field and the frontier. Stannard was dressed and out in twenty minutes.

Had she fled to join anybody? was the question that racked so many a heart, for, with the possible exception of gentle Mrs. Stannard, the girl had made no confidant.

It was this, full fifteen minutes after Lieutenant Field and two of his men had trotted off to town, that started old Stannard and big Jim Ennis down the valley from the veterinarian's, through "Sudstown," where girls and women were huddling and whispering at the news. They came to the long cavalry stables, standing gable ends to the north, like so many companies in close column, and at the sixth of these, farthest from the bluff whereon stood the barracks and quarters, they stopped and banged at the door. No answer, even when the sentry came to their aid and hammered with the butt of his carbine.

"I'll have him out," said the corporal of the guard and ran round to the south end and presently came back triumphant. He had roused the two orderlies. The burly major strode in, big Jim Ennis at his heels. The sergeant's door flew open before them. The room was empty. Fitzroy and Fitzroy's furs were gone. Nor was that all. Two empty stalls stood close at hand.

"I thought so," said he, then grabbed the nearest orderly by the coat collar. "Who took Lieutenant Foster's sleigh and team?" demanded he, "and how long ago?"

"Sergeant Fitzroy, sir," came the answer, with a doleful whine, "just before the third relief, at half past 11."

"No time to see the colonel now," said Ennis. "Major Stannard, I've got to gallop into town, but a dozen men, if need be, should trail that sleigh."

"Go it, boy," was the instant answer. "and I'm behind you."

CHAPTER VI.

the principle that disaster ever demands its victim the sentry of the second relief—the immediate predecessor of the soldier now on post at the north line of the stables—was stirred up at once and ordered to explain. Even as Stannard was hastening the movements of the men detailed to mount and trail the Foster team, even as Ennis was galloping toward town on a mission of his own.

Children's Hair

Keep It Free From Dandruff and it Will Grow Lovely

Being the best hair dressing for men and women, Parisian Sage is also best for children. Try it once and see how clean and healthy it keeps the scalp. "My daughter used Parisian Sage on her children's hair, and it is as good as you recommend it to be,"—Hannah Anderson, 1021 Divine St., Columbia, S. C.

Here is what a North Dakota woman says:

"Parisian Sage certainly has done my hair a lot of good, and will highly recommend it as a very good tonic for the hair. Have used various kinds of tonics and have found Parisian Sage the best. I have my head free from dandruff now, and it has a healthy lustre and has an even color. It used to be streaky. Many of my friends are using it and they speak highly of it."—Mrs. Anna Rooney, 101 Second St., N. Fargo, N. D.

Parisian Sage causes the hair to grow thicker, more luxuriant, and puts so much new life into it that it grows lustrous and beautiful.

Always bear in mind that there is nothing for the hair that can compare with Parisian Sage. There are many imitations but none of them are guaranteed to eradicate dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

OKLAHOMA COURT UPHOLDS THE GRANDFATHER CLAUSE.

Guthrie, Okla., Oct. 25.—The Oklahoma supreme court today handed down a decision holding the "grandfather clause" amendment not in violation of either the Oklahoma or the United States constitutions. This clause practically prevents negroes from voting. The court also upheld the validity of the special procedure under which the amendment was adopted, all votes not cast against the amendment being counted for it.

Billiousness is due to a disordered condition of the stomach. Chamberlain's Tablets are essentially a stomach medicine, intended especially to act on that organ; to cleanse it, strengthen it, tone and invigorate it, to regulate the liver and to banish biliousness positively and effectually.
